

1                                   IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
2                                   FOR THE DISTRICT OF PUERTO RICO

3           BANCO POPULAR DE PUERTO RICO,
4           et al.,

5           Plaintiffs,

CIVIL. NO. 01-1142 (GAG)

6           v.

7           LATIN AMERICAN MUSIC, et al.,

8           Defendants.
9
10

11                                   MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

12           Presently before the court is Universal's motion for summary judgment (Docket Nos. 314
13 & 316), which was timely opposed by LAMCO/ACEMLA (Docket Nos. 380 & 381). For the 14 reasons stated herein, the court DENIES Universal's motion and finds in favor of 15 LAMCO/ACEMLA as to the issue of priority between their conflicting transfers.

16           Under the 1976 Copyright Act, a prior transferee always prevails over a subsequent transferee
17 if the prior transferee properly recorded in the Copyright Office prior to the subsequent transferee's
18 recordation, and the work in question has been registered. Peer International Corp. v. Latin
19 American Music Corp., 161 F. Supp. 2d 38, 47 (D.P.R. 2001) (citing 2-7 Melville B. Nimmer &
20 David Nimmer, Nimmer on Copyright § 10.07[A][1][a]). In this case, it is undisputed that
21 EMLASA's was the prior assignment. However, EMLASA's 1981 recordation of its assignment
22 of copyright to "Fichas Negras" in the equivalent Copyright Office in the Republic of Mexico does
23 not constitute recordation for purposes of 17 U.S.C. § 205(d). The recordation of transfers and other
24 documents for purposes of said disposition must be made in the U.S. Copyright Office. See 17
25 U.S.C. § 205(a). Thus, assuming the validity of the transfer, even though it was executed first, it was 26 not recorded in the U.S. Copyright Office "within two months of its execution outside the United 27 States, or at any time before recordation in such a manner of the later transfer." 17 U.S.C. § 205(d).

28           "Notwithstanding, the prior transfer does not automatically forfeit the copyright simply because the subsequent transferee recorded first in time." See Peer International Corp., 161

Civil No. 01-1142 (GAG)

1 F.Supp.2d at 47. If the prior transferee fails to register and record before the subsequent transferee,
2 then the latter may prevail, but only if he or she (1) was without notice; (2) paid valuable
3 consideration; and (3) duly recorded his or her transfer before recordation of the prior transfer. Id.
4 at 48. Here, Universal does not argue that LAMCO took the assignment with notice of its prior
5 transfer, nor does it allege that LAMCO did not pay valuable consideration. Universal's only
6 argument is that LAMCO's transfer was not "duly recorded" because it was not done within one
7 month of the transfer. This contention fails because the statute allows for recordation at any point
8 before the prior transfer. See 17 U.S.C. § 205(d). Universal also points out that the recorded
9 document in this case lists too many songs for it to conform with the specificity requirements of 17
10 U.S.C. § 205(c). However, that disposition merely deals with whether or not a recordation document
11 in the Copyright Office may give constructive notice of the facts stated therein. Such disposition
12 is inapposite as to whether or not LAMCO's transfer takes priority over EMLASA's, an issue that 13 is governed by 17 U.S.C. § 205(d).

14 Having reviewed the parties' arguments and the evidence proffered in support thereof, the 15 court finds that the transfer of the copyright over "Fichas Negras" to LAMCO takes priority over the 16 prior transfer to EMLASA under 17 U.S.C. § 205(d). The court therefore DENIES Universal's
17 motion (Docket Nos. 314 & 316).

18 SO ORDERED.

19 In San Juan, Puerto Rico this 8th day of October, 2009.

20
21 S/ Gustavo A. Gelpi

22 GUSTAVO A. GELPI
23 United States District Judge
24
25
26
27
28